DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to the RCE filed 08/07/2006.
2. Claims 1, 10 and 17 were amended.
3. Claims 1-35 are pending in this office action.

Response to Amendment

4. Applicant's arguments, see remarks, filed 08/07/2006, with respect to claims 1-26 have been fully considered and are persuasive. The previous grounds of rejection with respect to claims 1-26 have been withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

5. Claim 32 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
6. Claim 32 recites the limitation "wherein modifying the number of samples". There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim. Adding the limitation "modifying the playback data block by inserting or removing a number of samples that is based on the determined number of samples" (or similar limitation) to claim 27 would be sufficient to overcome this rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

7. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

8. Claims 27-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Claim 27 does not produce a concrete and tangible result. Claim 27 is directed towards a method for temporal drift correction involving comparing, weighting, dividing and determining steps. The determining step determines a number of samples to be inserted in or removed from a playback data block. However, this is only a determination of a number, which is not a concrete and tangible result. While a purpose is stated, no actual application of the determined number is claimed. Therefore the determination of a number of samples is only a manipulation of an abstract idea. As such, claim 27 does not produce a concrete and tangible result and is therefore directed to non-statutory subject matter.

9. Adding the limitation "modifying the playback data block by inserting or removing a number of samples that is based on the determined number of samples" (or similar limitation) to claim 27 would be sufficient to overcome this rejection.

Allowable Subject Matter

10. Claims 1-26 are allowed.

11. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The primary reasons for allowance is the inclusion of the following limitations in each of the independent claims 1, 10 and 17, directed towards a method (and corresponding computer program and system) for temporal drift correction in a real-time electronic communication:

“weighting the comparison result with a parameter that relates to and amplifies a perceived value of temporal drift; determining, based on the comparison weighted with the parameter, a number of samples to be inserted in or removed from a playback data block; and modifying the playback data block by inserting or removing a number of samples that is based on the determined number of samples” (from claim 1, similar limitation in claims 10 and 17).

This subject matter is not found in the prior art, nor is it obvious in view of the prior art.

Conclusion

12. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
13. U.S. Patent 6,665,317 by Scott “Method, system, and computer program product for managing jitter” December 16, 2003. Discloses management of a jitter buffer including adjustments to the size of the jitter buffer. Does not disclose weighting a comparison result with a parameter that relates to and amplifies a perceived value of temporal drift and subsequently using this to determine a number of samples to be inserted or removed. .
